The Portuguese Paper.

The Portuguese organ, O Luso Hawaiiano, exhibits enterprise that explains its remarkable success. In its last number it, offers new and special inducements, very sweet ones too, in the shape of a premium in ice cream, to be procured for its subscribers at the well-known Pioneer establishment of Mr. Horn. It is not doubtful that the sweet tooth will work satisfactorily both for the paper and the ice cream factory, and we wish Mr. Marques all the success he so well deserves. At any rate it must be highly satisfactory to him to see that his efforts are very highly appreciated in Portugal, as shown by the flattering notices that have been republished. Some critics in Europe have pronounced his paper to be the best one published in the Portuguese language outside of Lisbon and Rio de Janeiro, a fact creditable to Honolulu as well as to the editor.

Ocean Yacht Race Off.

The Pacific Yacht Club have sent a polite letter to Governor Iaukea, H. M. Chamberlain, in reply to His Majesty's invitation to the club to attend the jubilee festivities, joining in an ocean yacht race from San Francisco for three valuable prizes, in order to get here. As only two yachts entered, and most of those belonging to the club were out of commission, the invitation was regrettably declined. The Aggie and the Lurline, the latter belonging to the Spreckels brothers, are believed to have been the entries.

Thoughtful Kindness.

A fireman on the Alameda died on the passage to this port, leaving a wife and two children. His body was buried in the sea. The passengers got up a pool on the day's run, which was won by Mr. John Bowler of Honolulu. He turned the whole winning over to the benefit of the woman and children, and the tickets being sold at auction their proceeds were added to the fund. The total amount raised was nearly $500.

SIDE LIGHTS.

Mr. C. T. Hoyt has moved his blacksmith shop to the new building on King street, near Nuuanu, and has turned the old place into a carriage repository, stocking it with an assortment of fine looking imported carriages. He will be glad to see old and new friends at either place.

The Bell Telephone Company needed all the instruments taken out of the Spreckels houses to fill applications for connections. An advertisement shows where they have been placed, together with other changes since the October card was issued. There are about 415 numbers on the list now.

The keeper of a restaurant began advertising in the HERALD about a week ago, and reports a large increase from the day his card appeared. He had to hire additional help on the second day, and the run still keeps up. The fact was, he had a good thing, but people did not know it until informed through a journal that everybody reads. Persons who rail at advertising often fail to receive benefit from it because they do not keep up their own stroke in the quality of what they have to offer the public.

Try Martinelli Cider. It is absolutely pure. Macfarlane & Co., agents.

The German bark Hercules entered out for Honolulu at Liverpool Oct. 9.

"As a true tonic, effective invigorator and genuine appetizer, Duffy's Malt Whisky is unexcelled."

FOREIGN NEWS.

UNITED STATES.

Prince and Princess Kamatsu and suite have arrived in San Francisco from Japan. The Prince is Generalissimo of the Japanese army and is making a tour round the world to study military tactics.

A tidal wave, caused by a fearful hurricane in the West Indies, overwhelmed Sabine, Texas. Two hundred and fifty people were drowned, and 1,500 lost all that they possessed.

Yellow fever prevails at Biloxi, Miss., and the place is strictly quarantined by all neighboring towns.

The cities of Eastport and Farmington, Maine, and Oakland, Illinois, have had their business portions swept away by fire.

Earthquake shocks continue at Charleston and neighboring towns. While trying to women and children, they do not seriously interrupt business.

Mr. Blaine is stump speaking in Pennsylvania.

EUROPE.

The Czar of Russia is said to have killed one of his Chamberlains, Mr. DeReutern, in a fit of anger. DeReutern was a brother of the morganatic wife of the Grand Duke Alexis, who was niece to Baron DeReutern. The Chamberlain, while waiting for the Czar, unbuttoned his heavy uniform on account of the heat. When the Czar came he sharply reprimanded the Chamberlain for the state of his clothing. DeReutern is supposed to have answered disrespectfully, when the Czar shot or cut him down. It is said the Czar supposed the man was presuming on his distant relationship to the Imperial family.

The war cloud has lifted for the time. There is talk of an understanding between Russia and Turkey, for the occupation of Bulgaria by the former and of Eastern Roumelia by the latter. All the Powers including England are opposed to Prince Alexander's restoration. Bulgaria is standing for her rights as best she can. It is believed Russia will try to place her own nominee on the throne by controlling the elections.

The creditors of the Inman Steamship Company have resolved to sell the concern to the International St. Nav. Co. for $820,000. Unsecured creditors will receive little more than fifty per cent.

There have been terrific storms and fearful loss of life on the British coast. It is reported France demands that England shall fix a definite date for her evacuation of Egypt.

Mauritius and Its Governor.

The island of Mauritius is well known to be one of the fairest possessions of the British Crown. The "Malta of the Indian Ocean," as M. Thiers called it, is famous for the beauty of its scenery and the fertility of its sugar-fields. It supports a population of some 120,000 whites, chiefly of French blood, and 250,000 coolies and negroes, who patiently till the fields, earn their little fortunes of a few scores of rupees, and then return to die in their own country. Yet, strange to say, the island is not always happy. It is not, in truth, very easy to govern, for the French population, thought loyal to the British Crown, is apt to take offense, to fire up if its rights are not readily admitted, and to look askance at authorities whom it believes to have other interests at heart than those of the planters. Archives of the Colonial Office are full of the records of squabbles between Governors and their subordinates. Sir John Pope Hennessy is a man of lofty aspirations, which he tries to realize by furthering the cause of the aborigines and of the colored laborers wherever he can; and, of course, this implies pretty strained relations with the other people who do not belong to his party—the planters and such-like. The worst is that it is so hard to find a place where such a Governor will have the minimum of opportunities for his irrepressible talent. In almost every colony of the British Empire there are either white and black or English and Irish ready for the hand of the organizer of parties. We commend the problem of finding a post where Sir John Pope Hennessy can do no mischief, and can find scope only for the amiable side of his character, to Mr. Stanhope and the Colonial Office. It is one which will tax their resources to the utmost.—London Times.
